

About NRLM

In a break from tradition, the Government of India has created a new program that will change how national ministries, state governments, the private sector, banks, and the poor approach this seemingly intractable problem. The new National Rural Livelihoods Mission will reach down to the household level to support the formation of institutions of the poor and the aggregation of those institutions beyond the community level. The institutions and their aggregate federations will form an institutional platform—from the self- help group to the district—with the scope and scale to leverage resources from the public and private sector and to interact favorably with markets. These platforms create an ecosystem for innovation where the poor work together and with external agents to identify problems and design solutions. They create the collective space for the poor—who have been reduced to living hand- to- mouth—to save, build assets, adopt new livelihoods, and see new opportunities for themselves and their families. The platforms also provide the organization of consumers and producers that help the private sector see the poor for what they are—one of the largest, most vibrant untapped markets for commerce.
